WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 9 1738.

No. 975.

they have published the following Particulars
the Removal of the Count de Seckendorf to Gratz, which are said to be certain.

THE Tumult that happened again on the 11th ult. O. S. before that General's House, increasing to such a Degree that the Mob attempted to break open his Doors, and to commit greater Outrages; Count Seckendorf charged a Brace of Pistols, and said, That if he must be sacrificed Moh, he would sell his Life dear. The Measures that were taken to suppress the Riot proving ineffectual, the Count went to Bed; but at Midnight was wak'd by his Secretary, who told him, that Count Tornaco wanted to speak with him from the Prison. Upon this the Count rose and received Colonel; who told him, That his Imperial Majesty for his greater Security, had given Order that he should be removed to a Place where his Person should be free from Insult: And the Officer added, he had Orders to carry him thither instantly. The Count asked, to what Place he was to be carried. The Colonel said, It had not been mentioned as yet, but he expected to know it every Moment.

He withal assured the Count, that he might rely on that Head, and that whatever was done for his Good. The Count de Seckendorf answer'd, That since he was as much resign'd as to his Imperial Majesty's Will and Pleasure, he was ready to go whither he thought fit to send him; he was persuaded, that wherever it was, he should find his Protection. Colonel Tornaco having, in a proper Manner, desir'd to be excus'd on Account of the Commission with which he was charged, Count Seckendorf said to him, That as he was an Officer of the Emperor, 'twas his Duty to execute his Orders to him. This Nobleman, who had various Thoughts in his Situation, could not help letting some Complaints fall, and said, After Nine Months Tribulation, must I now be taken from hence in a Hurry, without giving me any other Reason for it, but that for my Safety! That very Instant came a Captain, deliver'd an Order from the Emperor to the Count de Seckendorf to repair to Gratz, and another to Colonel Tornaco to carry him thither. The Count desired to know whether he was to be a Prisoner in Town, or in the Castle; but could not get Satisfaction as to that Point. When every thing was ready for his Departure, he ordered a little Trunk brought to him, from which he took 100 Ducats of which he made a Present to M. de Milling, the Major of Vienna, who had attended him for most part of the Time since his first Confinement: He took t'other hundred Ducats and put in Pocker, desiring the Major to take Care that said Trunk, in which he left the rest of his Cash, delivered to his Wife the Countess. He carried his little Trunk with him, that contain'd all the Emperor's Orders and Letters which he had produced in his Defence. After having taken a few Words with him, and three Volumes of Sermons, M. Rheinbeck, a famous Preacher at Berlin, he got into a Post Chaise with his Sword on, which permitted him to wear without any manner of Shame. Colonel Tornaco, and the Captain who brought the Order for carrying the Count to Gratz, placed themselves in the same Chaise with him, together with an Ensign, they set out from Vienna about Half an Hour past One in the Evening.

The Tumult of the preceding Day, having oblig'd Countess de Seckendorf to go and lye that Night in the House of a Lady of her Acquaintance, she was nothing of her Husband's Removal till after his going. But when she was made acquainted with it, she was so extremely afflicted that she fainted several Times, and had like to have died in Agonies.

The Emperor having permitted the Count de Seckendorf to dispose of the 6 Companies in his Regiment, whose Captains were killed in the Action at Corin, he nominated the Officers before his Departure for Gratz, and left a List of them behind

Letters from Smyrna by the Way of Venice say, that the Grand Seignior has ordered three Bashaws to march against the Rebel of Natolia, with a Command to bring him his Head by such a Time, on Pain of losing their own.

They write from the Hague, that the Directors of the Dutch East India Company, make earnest Remonstrances to the States General, for obtaining an Abatement of the Sum which their High Mightinesses demand for the Renewal of their Grant. Among other Pleas in their Memorial, they set forth, that the Company is very much eclipsed by the great Progress of those of France, Sweden and Denmark; that they suffer'd greatly last Year by the Loss of 7 or 8 Ships near the Cape of Good Hope, and this Year, by the Storm that happened on the Coast of Bengal; that several Petty Kings of the Indies have declared War against the Company, &c.

Warsaw, July 13. O. S. We have here the Copy of a Letter which was brought from Menrel the 7th Instant, about 8 o'Clock at Night, and is the Transcript of what has been dispatched by Messengers to Foreign Courts. The Original is dated at Petersburg on the 4th, and imports, that the Velt Marshal Count Lascei, has beat the Cham of the Tartars, and taken the Lines and Citadel of Perecop. This is the Place of which the Count de Munich made himself Master two Years ago, when he caused it to be blown up in such a manner that he thought it could never be repaired; but the Tartars and Turks have since put it into such a State of Defence, tho' with incredible Charge, that the said Count de Lascei was obliged to besiege it in Form; by which Means the Bashaw has been compelled to surrender it with all the Garrison: And, indeed, 'tis a Conquest of Importance, for the Citadel was furnished with 80 Brass Guns, besides those of Iron. The Turkish Garrison which is made Prisoners of War, will, in all Likelihood, be transported to some of the neighbouring Places in the Russian Dominions; but 'tis said the Bashaw will be carried to Petersburg, to keep Company with the Seraskier of Oczakow. When the News arrived at Petersburg, the Cannon was fired from the Ramparts, and the Admiralty, and the same was repeated after the singing of Te Deum in their great Church.

Cleves, July 28. O. S. The King of Prussia, who returned two Days ago from Guelderland to the Castle of Mooylandt, near this City, highly satisfy'd with the Reception he met with at Middagten and Loo, has not only found it necessary to displace M. Bohmer from his Office of President of the Chamber of Finances in this Duchy; but having also found his Secretary Guilty, has condemn'd the latter to hard Labour in the Fortifications. There were some Hopes of obtaining his Pardon upon the King's Return from Guelderland; but his Majesty is not to be prevail'd on to forgive Trespasses that are committed against the Good of the Publick.

And Yesterday the Right Hon. the High Court of Justiciary proceeded to examine the Proof on the Crimes libell'd against David Young of Gilmeadowland, viz. the separate Crime of cursing his Mother, and that of wilfully setting on Fire the House, Office-houses, &c. of Parkhall, the Property of Alexander Mitchell of Mitchell, Writer to the Signet; and after employing about 15 Hours in examining the Witnesses (a very long Sederunt for both Judges and Jury, but which they bore with incredible Patience;) Mr. John Macleod, Council for the Indictment, in summoning up the Proof, dropt the Charge of the Pannel's cursing his Mother, as nowise proved; but insisted, that tho' there was no direct Proof of the wilful Fire-raising, yet from the whole Chain of the circumstantiate Evidence, he stood convict, and the Jury ought to bring him in Guilty. Mr. Alexander Lockhart, Council for the Pannel, argued, That as not one Circumstance libell'd was proved, and as these Circumstances had no natural Connection or Tendency to one another, and could never be conjoined; so on the other hand, each Witness stood single, and were mostly exceptionable: Therefore the Jury ought to bring in a Verdict, Not proven. The Jury to Day returned a Verdict, Not proven.

P. S. Their Lordships this Day, after long Reasoning on the Bench, on the Case of Mr. James Hog, Minister of Caputh, and Thomas Souter, unanimously sentenced the Pannels to be for ever infamous, to pay to Mr. Haggart conjunctly and severally 250*l.* Sterl. and to be both imprisoned till it is paid; to be banished Scotland: And if ever they, or either of them return, the Person returning to be put upon the Pillory, and imprisoned till an Opportunity for Transportation to America.

Last Saturday Night General Wade arrived here, and next Day went to the Palace of Holyrood House, to pay his Compliments to the Marshal Duke of Argyle.
